Senate Is Now Down to the Metal Schedule.

A DENIAL TO TILLMAN'S CHARGES.

the Minority Proposed Numerous Amendments, But Were All Defeated-An Attack on Speaker Read In the House. Some Witty Talk In His Support.

Washington, June 2.—The senate made good progress on the tariff bill, advancing to the important metal schedule. During the day the paragraphs covering marble and stone, china, glass, brick and tiles were completed, with a few minor exceptions. Messrs. Vest and Jones (Ark.), in behalf of the minoirty of the finance committee, proposed numerous amendments, which were defeated by majorities of 8 to 14. The votes were on party lines in the main, although Messrs. Raw ins and White, Democrats, voted with the R publicans to increase the rate on onyx and Mr. McEnery, Demoagainst Mr. Jones' proposition for a re-

As a sequel to the recent sensational speech of Mr. Tiliman, Mr. Smith (N. J.) rose to a question of personal privilege while the tariff debate was proeither recently or at any time when sugar was the subject of legislation. Mr. Tillman was among those who heard the denial, but he made no comment on it. Fenator McLaurin (S. C.) was sworn in early in the day, raising the membership of the senate to 89. The tarin bill was taken up immediately after the disposition of business. The committee amendments were withdrawn on the paragraphs covering "all other china not specifically provided for," leaving the house rates at 60 for decorated and 55 for undecorated. Mr. Jones again offered an amendment. He supported it in a speech stating that at the rates of the present law the producers claimed to be doing a prosperous business.

Mr. Seweil (Rep., N. J.) answered. reading a statement showing that many potteries ha i failed and a large number of pottery workers were out of work as a result of the present low rates.

The committee offered a substitute, which was agreed to, on the paragraph covering tiles, glazed or unglazed. It is practically the same as the house paragraph. Paragraph 92, covering articles composed of earth and mineral substances, was taken up, aud Mr. Caffery (La.) offered an amendment reducing the vegetables, among them asparagus, and rate from 35 to 20 per cent on undeco- consequently the demand is greater than rated ware. The Caffery amendment was defeated

19-26, Mr. Heitfield voting with the Lemocrats in the affirmative and Mr. Jon s (Nev.) with the Republicans in the negative. The committee amendments to the paragraph were then agreed to. On paragraph 94, covering plain green flint or lime bottles, Mr. vest proposed an amendment reducing the rate on bottles holding more than one pint from seven-eighths of a cent per pound to three quarters of a cent. Mr. Vest held, in support of his amendment, that the American producers controlled the market and could export goods without a duty. Mr. Vest's amendment was disagreed to-yeas, 21; nays, 29. The paragraph was then agreed to as re-

The consideration of the bill proceeded from the point reached at the last session, viz: paragraph 165, relating to special s, eyiglasses, gogules, etc. Mr. ve t opposed the proposed rates, sayin; they ranged from 60 to 180 per cent on articles of necessity. Mr. Aldrich aigned that low-priced spectacies from abroad were so poor that it would be of advantage to exclude them from use in this country. Mr. White (Cal.) said this was the first time the "sanitary" argument had been used in support of a high taria, and Mr. (aftery declared that the American people did not ask that their speciacles be tried by Mr. Aldrich.

Mr. White offered an amendment substituting the rates of the present law. Mr. White's amendment was defeat d, and the paragraph was agreed to as reported. The remaining paragraphs relating to glass were agreed to as reported, except the paragrph covering stained or painted glass windows, which went over at the request of Mr. Allison. When the marole and stone schedule was taken up Mr. Vest made a contest on the paragraph relating to manutacturers of agate, etc., moving a reduction of the rate from 50 to 20 per cent. The amendment was defeated, yeas 17; nays 29. The committee proposed a change in the amendment relating to marble and onyx, leaving the marble rate as reported, and placing onyx, in block, at at $1.50 per cubic foot. Mr. Vest remarked that this was a raise of 300 per cent over the present rate, to which Mr. Aldrich assented. Mr. Caffery spoke against such heavy increases, warning Mr. Aldrich that he was "digging the grave" of protection. Mr. Aldrich answered that the proposed rates were required in order to give the American producers of onyx adequate protection against Mexican Mr. White and Mr. Jones (Ark.), both minority members of the finance committee, had several colloquies which disclosed a divergence of opinion between them and in response to jocular remarks by Mr. White, Mr. Jones said a :00 per cent increase could not be "laughed into respectability." The committee amendment placing onyx at $1.50 per cubic foot was then agreed to-yeas, 31; nays, 17. Messrs. White and Rawlins voted with the Republicans in the affirmative. The committee amendment as a whole relating to marble and onyx was agreed to.

On dressed freestone Mr. Vest moved a reduction from 50 to 30 per cent. In this connection Mr. Vest remarked that it became his melancholy duty to refer stock of queensware, at Navarre.

to another duty raised above the Mc-Kiniey rate. Already, he said, he had pointed out about 30 instances of the kind, although Mr. Aldrich had claimed there were but half a dozen rates above those in the McKinley bill. It had reached a point, Mr. Vest said, when the advocates of bill had lost all veneration and respect for that tarifiact bearing the name of the president of the United States. Mr. Lodge (Mass.) and Mr. Gallinger (N. H.) spoke of the greater labor cost in the quarrying of granite in the United States over that in Scotland and Sweden, and Mr. Gallinger expressed the hope that when the bill got into conference the protection afforded American granite would be greater than ever before. Mr. Vest's amend-ment was then disagreed to, yeas 19; pays 28.

The other paragraphs relating to stone and slate were agreed to as reported. This brought the senate up to schedule C, relating to metals and manufactures of metals.

Mr- White suggested that as the senate was drawing near to the sugar schedule any new schedule, even in an embryotic form, ought to be presented at an early day, as senators desired to make calculations on it.

"The senator will receive ample notice," responded Mr. Aldrich smil-"We will try so accommodate ingly, him. The senate then held an executive

PATRIOTICORGANIZATIONS ATTEND

The Rev. J. E. Digel Delivers an Eloquent seemon Inspired by the Occasion and the Public Service of Those Who Fell in the Sons and Daughters of Veterans, and a St. John's Evangelical church, Sunday evening, the Rev. J. E. Digel having been requested by the above named orgamzations to preach the annual memoorial sermon. The discourse was appropriate, and the large congregation gave its whole attention. The singing, too, had been especially propared for the occasion, and was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Digel said, in part: "In the history of the chosen people of God we find that certain days were especially observed in commemorating important events in the history of the nation. Passover, Pentecost and Tabernacts were the most important, and to these were added a number of lesser fesavals. The religious element predominated on such occasions; the nation as the Castlehill was a strongly fortibowing before the throne of the living fied position, and it was in his attempt and true God, confessing their manifold transgressions, praying for forgiveness of sins, and acknowledging God's bounteons blessings, as well as his absolute sovereignty. But, apart from the religious aspect, these days were of national value as binding the tribes together. kapting the several communities into one hody. On such occasions the younger generations were duly and carefully instructed as to to the origin as well as to the importance of these customs, thereby increasing their knowledge of Jehovah and strengthening their taith in Him, their spiritual and national ruler, at the same time binding them more firmly together as a nation.

"In the church of the New Testament we also notice that certain days are espeoully observed, as, for instance, Christmas, Easter and Pentecost. That they have been of inestimable benefit to the christians, no one acquainted with history will doubt. They bring the individual into closer communion with his Savor and strengthen the bonds of christian fellowship. "What the festivals are to the church

ENGLISH CAVE DWELLERS.

Evidences of Them Found In the Region Made Merry by Robin Hood.

The town of Nottingham is 124 miles on low lying ground close to the river Trent, where floods sometimes occur. but the rest of the town is built on a series of red sandstone hills. It is sitnated on the southeastern fringe of the great Derbyshire coal field, and the historic forest of Sherwood formerly spread almost up to the city walls. Now this forest has, in a great measure, been cut down, and this has reduced the rainfall, raised the temperature and The members of the G.A.R., the rendered the climate of the town drier and more bracing than it used to be. great many patriotic citizens filled St. The mean annual rainfall is now 25 inches and the temperature 47 degrees. As sandstone is soft and easily cut it is only natural that the early dwellers in caves came and lived in holes dug in the hills of Nottingham, particularly as the ferest close at hand was a good hunting ground where game could be captured for food.

Bronze and other tools employed by are occasionally found, and the first who wore the blue: name known to have been given to the place was Suoringaham. This in Celtic means "the home among the rocks." Afterward it became one of the towns of the kingdom of Mercia, and in the ninth and tenth centuries was one of the five chief northern strongholds of the Danes. Already what is now known to capture this fortress that Alfred the Great was signally defeated by the Danes. Two hundred years later, when William the Conqueror in his turn subjugated the Saxons, he rebuilt the castle of Nottingham and placed it under the command of his natural son, Wiliam Peverel.

But it was here also that Saxon resistance continued for many a long year, for it was in the great forest hard by that Robin Hood and his merry men dwelt. These outlaws were Saxous who were dissatisfied with the Norman rule and preferred a life of brigandage to submission. The holes dug in the rocks, the passages made through the sandstone mountains, enabled these bold foresters to occasionally appear in the town and close under the Norman battlements.—Boston Post.

Nerve Vitalizer in the treatment of neryous froubles is a popular topic in this place. It appears that Mrs. Henry Greene, who resides just outside of the corporation, had suffered many years from a peculiar female trouble and was advised by the attending physician, Dr. S. A. Du Paul, to go to Harper hospital, Detroit, for a surgical operation; that being her only hope to recovery. She followed the advice and the operation was successfully performed, but resulted in such a shock to her nervous system that she was stricken with nervous prostration. They were unable to revive her from that condition and so notified Dr. Du Paul, and at the same time sent her home as a probable incurable. None of us associated with him in the office felt that we had any right to say small. anything to him about it. It was his should we concern ourselves in the mat-

Truth is he was becoming more and more genteelly shabby every day, but the careful way in which his shiny coat and traved trousers were brushed and cared for was evidence that it was not one day that the weather was excedingly cold. A regular blizzard was raging, and only those where business compelled them to be cut ventured on the street at all. It was one of Jack's duties as cashier to go to the bank each day, and when the time came for him to make his regular trip and he slipped on his light overcout and started out the head bookkeeper reterrupted him:

"I say, Jack, you are not going out in that light coat? Why, man, the very marrow in your bones will freeze.

'Oh, nonsense, eld man. I always go this way—dressed warm inside, you know-prefer it that way-not so bulky and clumsy, you know.

And out he went. That night after most of the office force had gone Mike. the office boy, had to relieve his mind. "I don't think Mr Jack is dressed warm inside at all. I saw him roll up his sleeves to wash his hands today, and he only had on a thin cotton undershirt. I think he's dead close wid his money, and some day he will be ownin this in-

But we all knew better than this. Jack was in trouble. Why didn't he let us know what it was? Not a man in the office from the manager down to the office boy that would not have extended a helping hand to him, for we all loved him. He was a sterling fellow, always ready to divide on the thirds principleyou take two-thirds and he one. He had formerly I cou the Beau Brummel of the office, and what the change was that had come over him was worrying us all.

"Ah, Jack, you are quite artistic this morning!" said the head bookkeeper. "Do you still go to the Fifth avenue tailors? I remember you always said there were no other tailors in the city."

Jack did not reply. He could not tell a willful falschood; but, taking off the coat, he turned back the collar and displayed the little tag bearing his old tailor's name. He had cut it out of his old coat and earefully sewed it to the collar of his new purchase. It was about this time we began to learn that Jack's frugality did not extend alone to his clothes, but that he had changed his lodgings, which had been of a luxuriant character, to the meanest kind of quarters in a cheap tenement district. His meals, we learned, were taken at the cheapest restaurants, and the cost of his living must have been inestimably

What could it mean? Was Jack becoming a hermit? Was he losing all that pleased. As long as it suited him, why fine self respect and pride that had ally he was the same high bred Jack of old. He came of a good family, and his father had been at the head of one of the largest banking institutions in the city. He died a few years previous, and it was understood that Jack was his only heir and that he had received, not that made him go so shabby. It occurred a fortune, but a comfortable competency. We now remembered that it was about the time of his father's death that Jack's habits had undergone such a radical

I remember how we all envied him when he was supposed to come into his money; how we speculated as to what he would do with it, but on one point we all agreed—he would be the same good old Jack, and we would enjoy many of his little suppers and theater parties. Had he not always treated us this way at least once a mouth when he had nothing but his salary? Now that he had come into money we could expect many nice evenings at dear Jack's day or two. But he wasn't all right. He looked paler and thinner every day until one morning he did not come down. We all knew the reason. Nothing but sickness and serious sickness would keep him from the office. It was arranged that we should launt up his lodgings that night and have him cared for and proper medical attention secured. We found him in a cheap, small but clean room. On the table, under the one gaslight, we found two or three sets of books of small concerns that did not employ a regular

I MINER WHO PUT IN FIFTY YEARS AT GOLD HUNTING.

He Took All the Courses From Pan to Dynamite - His Story of the Marsh II Find -- Barkeepers Who Had Big Thumb.

Gathered in and around Butte are nen who have mined in almost every country under the sun: but, although charming conversationalists in the soniety of their friends, for some unaccountable reason they become suddenly lumb when approached by a newspaper man. It was a reporter's luck yesterday to run against one who talked in an ineresting way. He was a large, rather fine looking man, apparently about 70 years of age, and a man who had watchad with close interest the progress of mining on the Pacific coast since the historic days of 1849.

"Yes, I was out in Californy in the old days," he replied to a question, and then added with a pleasant smile: "I was thar from 1849 to 1889 and took all the courses, from pan to Uttle giant and from handmade black powder cartridges to dinuymite.

"When gold was discovered by Marshall in that tail race and Sutter was digging for his sawmill at Colema, not a man in that country knew a thing about mining. Never heard how they knew it was gold, hey? Well, there has been a great many stories told about it, but here is the right one: It was a little nugget Marshall picked up, worth $3 or Each one of the gang looked at it, bit it, tasted it, rubbed it, smelled it, but none of them had a clear idea what it was. Several thought it might be gold, but none was sure of it. A happy thought struck Marshall. Mrs. Weber boarded the hands. She was making soft soap from pine ashes lye. Marshall proposed the lady should boil the nugget in lye a day or two, and if it didn't change color or lose its substance in the test it was sure enough gold. Well, it stood the test. The world knows the

"Among the first on the ground was a lot of greasers, a cross between Mexicans and a lower class of humans. God knows they were all low enough, but the cross was no improvement on the general run of the cattle. The greaser for brought his willow made pan and knife as his mining tools. He cut and scraped among erevices of rocks at the water's edge for 'chispas.' or, as we call them, 'nuggets.' An enterprising white man made a 'recker.' That was a great improvement over the willow pan and knife. In the fall of 1849 picks, shovels, screens had been shipped in from the outside. Rockers sold for three ounces, shovels half an ounce apiece, picks the same; pans for a quarter of an ounce, paper when you write. gum boots an ounce a pair and whisky a pinch a drink. That was the price in 525-527 PENN AVE., mining camps. A pinch was what a barkeeper could take between his forefinger and thumb. They had hig fingers and thumbs in those days, and a barkeeper's salary was measured by their Wages was an ounce a day.

"The 'Georgia bumper' displaced the rocker. It was something like a rocker, Cleveland & Toledo but much larger, and had several riffles' to eatch the gold. The ends of the rockers bump against blocks of wood to jur the gravel in the screen and between riffes. A bumper cost $200, a wheelbarrow two ounces, and a China pump $25. That made a bumper mining outfit. The bumper didn't last leng. for the 'Long Tom' soon took its place. That was a stationary affair, with a long screen in which the 'pay dirt' was thrown. Water was conducted on the screen, the 'wash' falling through the perforations while one of the hands forked out the rocks or small stones. "A sluice or two were added to the These, as well as the Tom, were supplied with rifiles, which generally caught about all the dust. Long Toms were first used in Nevada City in 1850. Improvements in modes of placer mining rapidly followed. Sets of sluices without the Toms were used, then ground sluieing came next, and hydraulie mining, where water and fall could be obtained, displaced the recker, bamper and Tom. Hydraulic mining is an old thing now. "How about underground mining?"

inquired the reporter. Cold bearing quartz was first discovered by some miners in the bed of Deer creek, below Nevada City, in the summer of 1850. It was found in a narrow vein, but the discovery led to the opening up of the magnificent gold bearing quartz mines of Grass valley in Nevada county. All the equipments of the mines were at first crude, but the mines were rich and paid well. Black powder was used in blasting where blasting was necessary. Some years after nitroglycerin was introduced in the state, but an explosion of the stuff in a San Francisco express office knocked it out, and giant powder came into use. You know the rest."-Butte Inter-Mountain.

Rattlesnake Prices.

Rattlesnakes, live ones, are surprisingly cheap. For $4 you can purchase a fellow that will begin buzzing like a peanut vender's steam whistle as soon as he sees you and keep it up as long as you remain in sight, while his slender black tongue darts in and out like a sewing machine needle. For $17 you astonishing feature of the rattlesnake trade, however, is that the snakes are cheaper dead than alive. A prepared skin the size of the $17 live rattler may be purchased for $5, although there is enough of it to make two or three pocketbooks of the kind that sell for $25 apiece.-New York Sun.

The Stark county Populists have issued a call for a county convention to be held at the county seat city hall on June 18th at 10 a. m., for the purppse of nomrefuse to serve as cup bearers to Democracy any longer.

The visit of Governor Bushnell is a pleasant incident that every Massillontan empsys and appreciates. As governor it is expected that he will be glad of the opportunity to inspect the great work in which the state is now engaged at this point, and return to Columbus better equipped than ever to advise the next general assembly what course to pursue in relation thereto.

The Canton Journal has begun its daily visits to The Independent, and is ice, and energy in pursuit of benefits influences and aspirations. common to all.

It was a thrilling story and one well told that Prof. Jones gave to his hearers on Monday afternoon, when he related the historic charge of "thirty-two thousand generals" at Mission Ridge. It was a charge as gallant as the charge of the Light Brigade, and it is pleasant to remember that the first of those "thirtytwo thousand generals" to start up that ridge was Col. Dwight Jarvis with the two Massillonians, Lloyd and Ritter, behind him, both of whom fell on the field of battle. So brave a leader so bravely followed should have an undisputed place in the history of that engagement, and THE INDEPENDENT believes that the historians of Hart Post could properly seek information from all sources and get the facts serified beyond cavil for the records of the town wherein those three men lived and from whence, they marched a generation ago. The enthusiasm following the publicadon of the news concerning the splendid gifts to the city from Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McClymonds and Mrs. L. K. McClymonds has seldom been paralleled in Massilion, and the announcement has done more to awaken a municipal pride and spirit than anything that has ocgurred in the whole history of the city. Nothing is more valuable, to a community in developing its possibilities than this same pride and spirit, and Massilion, with far more reason, for it, has not been as fortunate in this respect as many other cities. The council has been infected with the prevailing feeling of gratitude and appreciation, and is prepared to co-operate with the librar custodians in supplying the funds reguired for ordinary expenses. This is especially gratifying, not merely on account of the revenue acquired, but because it recognizes the library at once as a public institution, founded for the good of the people. As Dr. Smith has aptly sug gested, opportunity is now presented to any person so desiring to add to the present capital of the library. As it grows in extent and usefulness its infuence will be felt in the personal benefit of thousands, and the organization of historical and other societies, which depend upon libraries for inspiration and success. It is not difficult to believe that Massillon has now begun its higher and better growth, and the future seems

It is the pleasure of the people of Massillen, and not merely of the organizations directly interested, to receive as their guests the governor and lieutenant governor of Ohio, the representatives of the Sons of Veterans of the state, and the officers, and members of the Eighth Regiment, Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias. It may be well. however, to state that the last mentioned donor is a veteran of the 104th Ohio regiment, and the ladies mentioned are his nearest relatives.

"The state of Ohio, with its four millions of people and forty thousand square miles, is one of the foremost states in the Union, and without fear of being successfully contradicted. I claim, it has produced and furnished the greatest statesmen, generals, soldiers, professors and men of prominence generally. Whenever you hear or read of a great statesman and trace his ancestry or read his biography, you will most always fin him to be an Ohio man.

"Should I attempt to enumerate all the statesmen, generals, authors of great works, etc., furnished by the state of Ohio, it would be an endless chain of names.

"The people of Ohio are also leading in intelligence, thanks to our lawmakers who made education compulsory. In summing it up, we can justly say it is a fortunate privilege to be born a Buckeye or to be a resident of Ohio by choice or by option, and I firmly believe that there is not a man in this assembly who would not be able to fill the Presidential chair at a moment's inotice. The mayor of a city is at times a privileged character, and occasionally honors are showered upon him that make him feel as though he was the greatest man in the country. Governor Bushnell traveled to Massillon in the private car of W. R. Woodford of the C., L. & W., going from Columbus to Crestline via the Big Four, and thence to Massillon. At Galion, where the Indianapolis division joins the main line, a large crowd assembled, partly to see Governor Bushnell and partly to see W. J. Bryan, who spoke in Indianapolis on Tuesday night and was on his way to Cleveland. Seeing the throng Governor Bushnell spoke briefly and oreated great enthusiasm. Mr Bryan's tram then arrived and he too delived a few remarks. Then the two trains were connected and Governor Bushnell invited Mr. Bryan to join him in his car. The invitation was accepted and the two men journeyed together as far as Crestline. At Galion Mr. Bryan was almost left and the governor exclaimed to the crowd, "We wanted him left last fall, but not today." Governor Bushnell and Mr. Bryan sat together in the smoking compartment, when Mr. Bryan opened the conversation by saying:

The whites landed on the northwest portion and marched toward their enemies. The Indians had out all their boats a short distance up what is now known as New river, to avoid the surf which breaks upon the point. The Indians were at the extreme point, enjoying themselves in auanwonted round of conviviality and teasting. The whites approached cautiously and stealthny, and, having got between the Indians and their boats, shower of bullets was the first intima-

A few, very few, escaped by swimming, some to the opposite marsh, and one swam entirely over to Tybee, a distance of three miles. From the dreadful carnage at this spot it received the name of Bloody Point, which it retains to this time, it being the extreme southeastern point of South Carolina. After this decisive victory the settlements to the north of Broad river received no further molestation from the southern Indians, and soon after Hilton Head itself began to be settled by the whites. The Indians who escaped, having collected after a lapse of some time, returned to Hilton Head, and, finding only two of the tribe who had guided town he has visited. Neither working nor the whites in their pursuit, avenged the downfall of their own tribe by destroying both of them. They then returned south and were lost sight of ever after. A queer character is "Jack the ham mock rider," who is now touring the west in his own peculiar style. Jack's hantmock is of his own construction and bears the mark of considerable ingenuity. It is designed to fasten under a sleeping car to aid Jack in beating the railroad. The hammicek is made of beavy canvas, unilted on the inside and fastened to a stout stick at each end. Two large iron books project from the wooden rods and by these he at

to his peculiar mode of travel, but also to the fact that his life ill fits a man of his characteristics. During the recent campaign he attracted considerable attention as a stump speaker, and by his ready with he has gained a friend in almost every by dint of clever invention and repartee.

A FALSE TEACHING.

-Pall Mall Gazette.

That Man's Chief End Is to Crucify Spontaneity on the Cross of Drudgery. The Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst writes of "The Young Man at Play" in The Ladies' Home Journal. He asserts that "it is play rather than toil that is most germane to our true nature and that lies closest to the divine intention. The care needing to be exercised as to the quality of our amusements must never be construed into a verdict against amusements in themselves considered. With most of us the play impulse stands far more in need of encouragement than it does of restriction. The proverb, 'It is better to wear out than to rust out! is true in form, but false in spirit.' The flowers do not wear out, but neither do they rust out.

"One reason why so many people are asking whether life is worth living is that we are teaching ourselves that See you get Carter's, man's chief end is to struggle and to erucify spontaniety on a cross of drudg- 'Ask for Carter's, ery. We are not arguing for indolence. Indoience is as distinct from play as a Insist and demand pool is from a mountain brook. But we shall be greatly disappointed in heavto itself, and an experience that will be saintly in heaven can hardly with reason be criticised as limp and puerile if indulged in before we enter heaven.'

He Got Judgment.

A Washington attorney is rather noted for the facility with which he forgets financial obligations. He has owed a certain grocer $8 for a year or two. The other day the merchant concluded to try a new course with him. Meeting him in his store, he said:

"Judge, I have a customer who owes me a small bill and has owed it for a long time. He makes plenty of money, but won't pay. What would you do?" "I'd sue him," said the lawyer emphatically.

"Well, I will put the account in your hands," and the merchant prescuted a statement of the account against himself.

"All right. I will attend to it," said the disciple of Blackstone.

A few days later the merchant received the following note from the law-

"In the case of —— against —— 1 took judgment for full amount of your claim. Execution was issued and returned 'no property found,' My fee for obtaining judgment is $10, for which amount please send check. Will be glad to serve you in any other matters in which you may need an attorney. "-Washington Star.

BRACEOFBEAR STORES bear returned, and as Wood fell she snapped at his face. He dodged and she caught his left shoulder.

A Florida Girl's Hand to Hand and he was in imminent danger of being Fight With Bruin.

Been Celebrated In Verse by Bret Harte. A Terrible Combat In the Humboldt

Florida has a brave girl in the person of Marie Robinson, who lives two miles from Fort Pierce on Cedar hammock. While she was making bread the other day she

MARIE ROBINSON AND THE BEAR. was startled by the appearance of a young black bear close beside her, standing on its hind feet. Raising a big hard wood rolling pin, she brought it down with a tremendous whack on the bear's snout. Bruin did not like this treatment, and advanced toward the girl, fencing with his fore paws. Again Miss Robinson delivered a blow at her advancing foe, but the hear had learned wisdom, and he deftly parried the blow with his right paw. He then caught Miss Robinson's dress with his other paw, tearing it from her shoulder. In return she gave him a straight right hander with the roller, which caught

him under the ear and set him down. Bruin scrambled up from the second round and was pretty mad. He shuffled up to the girl, warily keeping both fore paws extended and growling angrily. Miss Robinson again landed a right roller, hitting him squarely between the eyes. As soon as he recovered from the stunning effects of the blow he endeavored to grasp the girl in his paws. Seizing a big butcher knife that lay on the tables Miss Robinson lunged forward with it, its blade penetrat- another step tonight.' So we argued for ing the bear's neck. A bright stream followed its withdrawal and bruin was becoming groggy. Blow after blow with the rolling pin fell upon his head, and after a few minutes the brave girl had the satisfaction of seeing the animal roll over on his side and expire.

Men Against Grizzlies.

The death of Thomas Scabring at Santa Ana, Cal., the other day, recalls to the mind of many an old pioneer in the Gold-State one of the most desperate fights with grizzly bears ever recounted about the fire in mining camp. Bret Harte made the affair the subject of a poem in The Overland Monthly in Lis days of apprenticeship as a popular writer.

One day in the fall of 1858 three placer miners who were on their way across the monetains and through the timber were traveling up a narrow canyon, almost a gulch, in the Humboldt county mountains in central California. The men wete almost fami-hed, having had no ford since the noon of the previous day. They passed a huge howlder and saw several handred rods ahead a family of eight grizzly Lears. Three were large, shaggy beasts, and the others were probably a year old. The men held a hasty consultation, and, their hunger making them desperate, and having much amnunition with them, they decided to attack the Lig fellows for the sake of the steaks they might get. The men looked to their old muzzle loading guns and saw that their ammunition was safe. Then they advanced upon the mighty beasts, each man having arranged with the others exactly where he was to shoot.

Thomas Scabring always claimed that he had sense enough, as the men got near the ferocious grizzlies, to give up the hunt and climb for safety up a tree, with his gun slung across his shoulder. The other men, S. K. Wood and Isaac Wilson, threw prudence to the winds and advanced to within 50 yards of the bears. Wood fired his rifle, and the nearest bear fell, biting and tearing the ground as though in the agonies of death. While Wood was reloading his ride Wilson brought down a beer. Five of the grizzlies retreated up a 1 wine, but one shaggy monster r. mained with her fallen companions. She sat erect on her haunches and turned her eyes on the men as if daring them to battle. Wilson, awed by her aspect, ran for a tree, while Wood tried to reload his gun, but tound himself unable to ram the ball down on the powder. While in this predicament the grizzly that had not fled rushed at him. Wood succeeded in getting into a small buckeye tree and used the gun to beat the bear off as she attacked the tree with the intention of shaking him out.

this bear Wood, to his horror, saw the animal he had wounded rise and rush toward him. No blows that he could inflict on the wounded animal could check her. At the first spring she made the tree broke and the bears jumped for Wood. He gained his feet and made with all speed down the mountain to where another small tree stood about 30 yards away. He reached the tree with the wounded hear at his heels and, seizing the trunk, swung his body around so as to give the bear headong down the mountain about 20 Bluff, St. Kikla, Melbourne. About yards. Before Wood could, with his failroom to pass him, which she did, plunging ing strength, swing himself into the tree have been put into the venture, and about the second bear bounded up and seized his 30 tens of rich ocean mud and excellent right ankle. By this time the wounded road metal taken out, but no coal.

Then commenced a terrible struggis The maddened animals tagged in opposite directions at Wood's ankle and shoulder, torn to pieces. He fought as best he could, but each exertion he put forth only intensified the rage of the bears. When he was almost fainting with pain, the bear SLEW HIM WITH A ROLLING PIN. that had not been wounded dropped his ankle and trotted slowly after his companions up the ravine. Then the wound A Famous Fight With Grizzlies That Has ed bear let go her hold on his shoulder. Wood sank back on the ground and lay perfectly quiet, as though dead, hardly daring to breathe. The grizzly stood majestically over him, watching for the slightest movement and snarling with rage. The pain that racked the man's frame was frightful, and he risked his life

In an effort to assume an easier position. At the first movement, the grizzly, rouring furiously, rushed at him. She shoved her nose close to his face and sniffed at him, but Wood was again motionless, and the bear, raising her head, gave vent to uncartaly roars. Wood, knowing that his life depended on it, remained motionless, and the hear trotted after her companions up the ravine.

When he attempted to rise, Wood found that his right hip was dislocated and his left shoulder was chewed to the bone, while his clothing had been stripped from his body, and his flesh had been chewed in a hundred places. Inch by inch he painfully dragged himself from the spot, until Seabring and Wilson, accompanied by David A. Buck, who had been left to guard the camp, found him and carried him to their quarters.

FFAZED THE DRUMMER.

Woke Up and Was Embarrassed to Find Ladies Exploring His Clothes.

"Well, sir, you can say all you wish about the natural callousness and effrontery of men; but, by George, if you can find anything to surpass a little experience of mine in Cedar Rapids, la., last month, I'd like to hear about it," said the modest commercial traveler. "I tell you, men are just nowhere in a competitive test with women where pure, unadultered brazenness is concerned. I was compelled to take a little run to Cedar Rapids on business, so I boarded an afternoon train from Chicago, and landed at my destination about 1 o'clock a. m. Of course I went to the best hotel the place afforded.

"'Got a nice room?' I asked the clerk.
"'Nope-we're all full,' was the laconic

Everywhere? said I,

" 'Can't you put me in the attic?'

" 'Attic's full too.'

" 'Well,' I said, 'you've got to fix me a cot somewhere, for I can't and won't stir awhile, and finally it was agreed that I on the purior floor. The clerk said that he would see that I was waked very early in the morning, at 5 o'clock if I chose. " But I don't choose,' I said. "I want to sleep late-I'm dead fired."

"Sorry, sir," said the clerk, but the hotel's full of W. C. T. U. women, and you'll have to get up at daybreak if you want to escape alive.

"I grambled awhile, but was too sleepy to say much, so bundled off to bed, the beaming clerk leading the way. I was rather appalled, on reaching the parlor floor, to see a solitary narrow cot occupy ing one end of a long, wide corridor, into which opened a dizzying number of doors. But I serewed up my nerve, and when the clerk departed I divested myself of my cont and vest and prepared myself for a sweet, undisturbed rest. I was dimly conscious of being horribly uncomfortable during the night and of having taken off first this and then that article of apparel. However it happened, at about half past 5 one of the bellboys attempted to get me out of bed. Do you think he succeeded: No, sir, I was tired, mad as the deuce and only half awake. So I exchanged a few pleasantries with him, fired a lot of deli cate attentions in the form of shoes, trousers, coats and things upon him, and then lay down and went pencefully to sleep

"At about 7 o'clock I was again aroused. but this time by the subdued, excited murmur of feminine voices. I opened my eyes with a start and cantiously raised my hend a little bit. And, sir, do you know, there were at least 20 women in that corridor, each, to all appearances, examining a separate article of my attire. Here was one big, fat woman closely scrutinizing the inside lining of my vest, while another ascertained the number of my shoe. A third was raveling out the silk threads in my necktic, and two or three were examining my new $4 suspenders. Frankly, I wanted to shout at them, but there I was. lying in state-and an eider down quiltin scarcely the costume to address ladies. I shut my eyes and patiently waited, but they waited too. I coughed, and instantly the murmur of voices ceased.

"I turned over as though I were about to wake, and then waited again. All was silent. So I peeped out from under the folds of the quilt. And there were those women lined up on each side of the hall, watching me like hawks. I threw one arm outside the cover-there was a rustle of paper falling to the floor, and as I suddenly sat up the whole lot of the women fled down the corridor like frightened rabbits and disappeared down the stairway. Well, I got up and dressed as quickly as possible, but do you know that in my coat and vest pockets, in my shoes, folded While he was engaged in fighting off with my trousers and laid like a coverlid over the cot were tracts-'Avoid the demon drink," 'Rush not headlong to perdition, and all that sort of thing. The only wonder to me about the whole thing is that they didn't force me to eat their levely tracts, for the inside of me was the only place they forgot to leave one."

HORSE MEAT DEFENDED.

An Authority Claims Prejudice Prohibits Its General Use.

Everybody is aware that the horse is the cleanest of all demestic animals. It will not eat anything but good, healthy food, nor drink any but pure water. A horse would rather starve than swill the rotten stuff often given to pigs and cattle. It is nothing but prejudice that prevents us from eating horseflesh.

A similar prejudice retarded the introduction of the potato 100 years ago. Today we could not get along without it. Yet the prejudice against potatoes can be explained. The people had been told that this American root caused fever and rendered the ground unfit for all other crops. The exception against horseflesh is not even founded upon any objection to its properties. It is solely due to the influence of the church. The clergy did everything possible to prevent the newly converted Saxons from returning to their heathenish practices and prohibited the use of horseflesh to stop the sacrifices to Odin and Thor. A long time passed before these sacrifices were altogether discontinued.

The nations of Europe have suffered enormous loss by this prohibition of horseflesh. Especially from the humanitarian point of view the results are most deplorable. Millions of people are forced to live on potatoes and similar food wanting in nutritive qualities, while millions of pounds of the very best meat are wasted. Horseflesh is the most nourishing of all meats, and its taste is hardly to be distinguished from that of beef. The flesh of a horse fed on oats has a smell similar to gooseflesh. The fat is preferable to lard. Above all, it should be remembered that no flesh is so healthy as that of the horse. Trichinosis and similar diseases are unknown in horses. Tuberculosis, very common in cattle, is very rare in horses. -- Frankfurter Zeitung.

PRIVATE BRADLAUGH.

How He Rebuked an Officer For His Ungentlemanly Conduct.

One of Messrs. Cassell's publications says that the late Charles Bradlaugh, ting at work and addressed to him some discourteous order. Private Bradlaugh took no notice. The order was repeated with an oath. Still no movement. Then it came again, with some foul words added. The young soldier rose, drew himself to his full height, and, walking up to the officer, bade him leave the room or he would throw him out. He went accordingly, but in a few moments the grounding of muskets was heard cutside, the door opened, and the colonel walked in, accompanied by

and Private Bradlaugh was bidder to explain. He asked that the officer AWORF TO FIND THE LADIES EXPLORING HIS should state the exact words in which he had addressed him, and the other, was to sleep on a cot in the main regridor who had, after all, a touch of honor in him, gave the offensive sentence word for word. Then Private Bradlaugh said. addressing the colonel, that the officer's memory must surely be at fault in the whele matter, as he could not have used language so unbecoming to an efficer and a gentleman. The colonel turned to the officer with the dry remark: "I think Private Bradlaugh is right. There must be some mistake," and he left the

A New Antiseptic.

We are willing to admit that the Japanese can gave us points on various industries and incentrical arts, but we have searcely been prepared for the anconnectic that they are alread of us in certain peints in surgery. Antiseptic lressings are an ing the absolutely necessary surgical appliances. There is mere or less difficulty in preparing them, and they are for the most part expensive, and many of them are not at all satisfactory. During the war Japanese surgeons used the ashes of ricestraw as a dressing for wounds, and met with most remarkable success. The was used as a wrapping. These ashes are said to be a perfect antiseptic, and owe these qualities to the presence of potassium carbonate. English and American surgeons are trying this dressing, and if it is as successful in their hands as in the Japanese, it certainly is a wonderful stride in antiseptic surgery. and is unquestionably the cheapest dressing that has ever been prepared .-New York Ledger.

When a little one is expected in the family, how lovingly the parents plan together for its future welfare. They sometimes even forecast its education and career. Does this seem too early to anticipate while the child is yet unborn? It isn't. The child's destiny has already been partly mapped out by nature, according to the disposition and habits of the parents. The best plan a mother can make for the future happiness of her unborn child is to maintain her own cheerfulness and health while her child's undeveloped being is still a part of hers. Her health at this critical period is of tremendous consequence to the little one's whole future existence. Every prospective mother will find direct nourishment, comfort and sustaining strength in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It will maintain her vitality both bodily and mental: shorten the period of confinement, and make labor easy and alelasticity to the organs concerned in par turition, invests the mother with recuperative energy against after weakness and depression, and aids in the secretion of healthy nourishment for the male weakness.'
